TRAFFIC REGULATIONS.

There are a few well known makes of cars equipped with side lights that are in violation of an ordinance. When these lights are lit they throw a blinding glare that is very dangerous to approaching drivers. It would be well if the glasses of these strong lights were frosted over. The fear of arrest should prompt every one to do this.

There are still many cars which

There are still many cars which partially cover up their licenses by carrying tires in the rear. The law distinctly states that the license numbers shall be plainly visible, and if a part of the license pad is obstructed the owner is liable to arrest. Look over your rear numbers and be sure that you are complying with the law.

While there are many good farm tracts within the one-hour transit radius, demand has raised land prices much above the farm level, as a rule. They are passing steadily to residential utility.

T. R. M. asks: "Will the rising prices of farm products make farms near cities more valuable?"

It would take from twenty to thirty years, probably, the exact time depending upon the terms which you might make with the seller.

B. S. S. writes: "They say the war will make hard times and that money should be hoarded rather than invested even in a home. Is this a good time to buy real estate?"

Low prices are what the wise buyer seeks, and such prices are made at a time when the majority of people are afraid to buy. This may be just such a time.
